What's New in the?

The Scrapboy project allows the users to send/receive friends "scrap". The original aim of the project was to create a visual and social tool in the way we communicate with our friends on the internet. But even if the original idea was to create a tool for conversation, the developers thought it would be possible to implement the concept of "scrap" on other situations. So it is the first purpose of the app to allow users to scrap their friends using the "friend's scrapbook" feature. The "scrap" concept is the term used to designate an instant communication exchanged i.e. any type of communication without any need for interaction between two computers. So the app Scrapboy allows a user to send and receive these "scrap" in a friend's scrapbook. This kind of communication requires that the users are logged on to the Orkut website at the same time. What if you are not logged on at the same time? So... You can still "scrape" your friends scraps. But for this you must log on the Orkut website, be logged in to Scrapboy and give the permission to the app to scrape the scrapbook of your friends. Like this: We need some features to work properly with the Orkut API. So we created the Scrapboy API Explorer://scrapboy.com Overview Trunkers is an immensely satisfying experience. It gives you an unobstructed view of your journey, reminding you of the people you've been, the road you've been on, and your growing experiences. You start with a blank canvas, an onion an incomplete journal. Then you add, jot down or begin to get to know the people and places that make up your life. With a few taps and swipes, you = can add, simplify, collect, or create pages for other travelers, friends, colleagues, or family members. The pages you create become tangible, taking on their own being, other than your own. With your own body of work, even if incomplete,
